Re: Special Access for Price Cap Local Exchange Carriers, WC Docket No. 05-25

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On October 26, Jose Jimenez, Jeremy Bye, and the undersigned, on behalf of Cox Communications, Inc. ("Cox"), met by teleconference with William Layton, Eric Ralph, Ken Lynch, and Elizabeth McIntyre of the Wireline Competition Bureau.

The purpose of our meeting was to discuss Cox's ability to respond to requests for information on certain facilities that would be covered in the pending data request in the docket captioned above. Specifically, Bureau staff asked about our ability to provide Cox's facility locations by latitude and longitude as of December 31, 2010 and December 31, 2012, as well as a number of other details, where Cox provisions at least 1.5 Mbps of dedicated service. The Bureau staff also asked whether it would be possible to provide billing data for the same services. Staff noted that the data would be submitted under the second-level Protective Order in the docket captioned above.

We explained that the requested data would require significant manual efforts to obtain, verify, and collate. Cox does not maintain a single centralized source for the information requested. For example, much of Cox's coaxial cable assets are inventoried and tracked in one database, while fiber assets are tracked in another. Nor does Cox maintain locations of served buildings in longitude/latitude formats, and it would likely impose some additional cost to convert street addresses to the desired format across Cox's multiple databases.

With regard to pricing information, we explained that such information was highly confidential and very difficult for Cox to capture, particularly the 2010 information, given the changes in our system structure. To the extent possible, we urged Bureau staff to narrow the request, possibly to areas that were deemed uncompetitive based on some proxy, such as market share.

Ms. Marlene Dortch
